

Peregrine Coolant Heater: X-Type (230V)

PEREGRINE X-type coolant heaters are ideally suited to large diesel engines where one, two or more heaters may be needed on a single engine and/or where there is the need for alarm operation if the heater or supply fails. All X-type heaters are fitted with twin thermostats factory set at 50°C adjustable, one operating the heater while the second is usually set a few degrees lower to switch an independent alarm circuit should the coolant temperature fall below a pre-set temperature.

Available in the following size connections:
